Subject: Ridiculous!

Allowing people to install security cameras in condo areas is ridiculous! One man's security would then be an infraction on the rights of other people in the condo. Cameras have a wide field of vision and could very well infringe upon the rights of others.

I have a security system in my condo which only included's my unit as do others, there is no question about my security system infringing upon the rights of my neighbor.

I would suggest that the Judiciary Committee consider something more responsible such as standing up for the Second Amendment!

But then if someone is willing to allow security cameras on individual units in a condo facility, then that someone does not think very much about the United States Constitution!
